MEMPHIS, TENN., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1883.

The question of a Southern statesman for Vice-President on the Democratic ticket to be nominated in 1884, as suggested by us some months ago, is still being discussed by the press, and generally these discussions end in a hearty indorsement of the APPEAL. Some interesting reading to this effect will be found in Washington, October 31.—The correspondence incident to the retirement of Gen. Sherman from the active command of the army has been made, public. In a letter to the Secretary of War, Gen. Sher-

By an act of Congress, approved July 15, 1882, all army officers are retired on reaching sixty-five years of age, if living. I will attain that age on the 8th of February, 1882; but, as that period of the year is not suited to the changes necessary on my retirement, I have long contemplated anticipating the event by some months, to enable the President to make those changes at a more convenient season of the year, and also to enable my Secretary Sinclair, in reply, says that the request has been approved by the President, and that the necessary orders will be issued, and conclude by wishing the general long life in which to enjoy the gratitude of his tellow-citizens, well earned by his distinguished public services.

In the Circuit Court to-day the time was occupied in the cross-examination of Hallet Kilbourn in his suit for damages against Ex-Ser geent at-Arms Thompson. Nothing new was developed, and the proceedings were uninteresting be understood that that is not the fact, but that we are striking against a reduction of wages. Our wages since June have been $5 per day. The employers propose to reduce it to $4.50. They have also signified their intention of not employing any Union man unless he will sign an agreement to withdraw from the Union. There is as great demand for labor in our trade at the present time as there has been at any time the last six menths, and we have determined to resist this action of the employers. JOHN LYLE,
